A Thankefgiuing.

Por bo the things that might be ioine, to Christ our quiet cale.

Thus are we all his enemies, we can it not beny:

Ind he againe of his god will, would not that we thould be.

Therefoze when remedie was none, to bring be unto life:

The fonne of God our fielh he take, to end our mortall firife.

Ind all the law of God the Lord, he did it full obey:

And for our finnes boon the croffe, his bloud our finnes boo pay.

Und that we thould not yet forget, what god be to be wrought:

A figure be left our cies to tell, that he our bodies bought.

In bread and wine here viffele, but o thine cies and tall:

Dis mercies great thou maiest record, if that his spirit thou has.

As once the come bid line and grow, which was cut downe with Sithe, And threshed downe with many Aripes, out from his hulke to drive.

And as the mill with violence, bid tears it out to fmall:

Und made it like to earthly duft, not sparing it at all.

Und as the onen with fire hote, bid close it by in heate:
And all this bone as I have said, that it thould be our meat:
So was the Lozd in his ripe age, cut bowne with cruell death:
Dissoule be gave in tozments great,

and peloco by bis breath.

Because that he to be might be, an everlasting bread:

The much reprochand troubles great, on earth his life he led.

Ind as the grapes in pleasant time are pressed very sore:

Und plucked downe when they be ripe, nor let to grow no more.

Because the fuice that in them is, as comfortable brinke:
The must receive and toyfull be, when sorrowes make be shrinke.
So Christes blod out presed was, with nailes and eke with speare:
The fuice whereof both save all those, that rightly bo him feare.

And as the coines by bnitte, into one loafe is knit:
So is the Loid and his whole Church, though he in heaven fit.
As many grapes make but one wine, so thould we be but one:
In faith and love in Chill abone, and onto Chill alone.

Leading a life without all Arife, in quiet rest and peace:
From envic and from malice both, our hearts and tongues to rease.
Which if we do then thall we shew, that we his chosen be:
Wy faith in him to leade a life, as alwaies willed be.

And that we may to be in dede, Dod lend be all his grace: Then after beath we thall be fure, with him to have a place.
